Wed, 07 Nov 2018 06:56:00 GMT Poem in October by Dylan Thomas | Poetry Magazine - A springful of larks in a rolling Cloud and the roadside bushes brimming with whistling Blackbirds and the sun of October Summery On the hill's shoulder, Here were fond climates and sweet singers suddenly Come in the morning where I wandered and listened To the rain wringing Wind blow cold In the wood faraway under me. Mon, 05 Nov 2018 10:12:00 GMT Dylan Thomas -- POEM IN OCTOBER - bigeye.com - The red leaves of October are still a sign of death to him (a loss of blood): time is a loss of freedom. But in Poem in October he feels time as real; he "stood there then". For a schizoid individual this is a great achievement; and we sense this in the controlled rhythm of the poem we feel it is profoundly meant, and that dissociation has been overcome.
